TO NEEDHAM Y. GULLEY, gentleman, scholar, and devoted son of Wake Forest, with admiration and esteem, we, the members of the Student Body, dedicate this the thirty-second volume of the HOWLER.

F O R E W O R D

THIS year Wake Forest celebrates its centennial anniversary. It is fitting and appropriate, therefore, that the Editors of this Book should combine, in so far as is possible, the history of those memorable years with the history of the school year, 1933-1934.

The members of the Class of '34 bow in tribute before the Wake Forest of yesterday. To those men who laid the foundation stones of this institution which we so love we owe an irreparable debt of gratitude. To them we pledge our unfailing loyalty, our eternal devotion that the Wake Forest which they molded so well with their own hands might live on ever consecrated to the spiritual, moral, and intellectual elevation of the youth of the Land.

The COLLEGE

WAKE FOREST AND THE MINISTRY

SINCE its very conception one hundred years ago Wake Forest has been essentially a school devoted to the cause of Christ and His work. A denominational school, supported and nurtured by the Baptists of the State of North Carolina, it has contributed much to the Herculean task of perpetuating His Kingdom not only in this state but even into the Nation and into the World. Among the men graduating from the school of Religion may be found the names of the foremost preachers of the Baptist Denomination. To recount their names in such a limited space would be impossible. Suffice to say that, it is they who, because of their courage, devotion, and love for Him who is the Father of us all, first brought to their Alma Mater glory, honor, and renown.

WAIT

HOOPER

THE EARLY DAYS OF WAKE FOREST

GEORGE WASHINGTON PASCUAL

ONE of the prime purposes of our fathers in forming the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina was to provide for the founding of an institution like Wake Forest College. With Samuel Wait as the Agent of the Convention they went steadily about the work and on February 3, 1834, Wait as Principal opened Wake Forest Institute. Five years later the Institute by an amended charter became a college, and graduated its first class in June, 1839. It has had a great and inspirational history, but in a sketch the scope of this it will be possible only to name the nine Presidents and the chief matters of importance connected with the administration of the first six, the last three being omitted both because they are still living and their administrations are not yet history.

The Presidents in order are: Samuel Wait, Principal of Institute, 1834-38, and President of College, 1839-45; William Hooper, 1847-49; John Brown White, 1849-53; Washington Manly Wingate, 1854-79; Thomas Henderson Pritchard, 1879-82; Charles Elisha Taylor, 1884-1905; William Louis Poteat, 1905-27; Francis Pendleton Gaines, 1927-30; Thurman Delna Kitchen, 1930- —.

To be mentioned first in Wait's administration is the fact that he gave the institution the tone and character that still distinguishes it. Wait was able in a wonderful way to impart to those under his charge something of his own native dignity and seriousness of purpose and to impress upon them that they must be gentlemen, that they must make religion a part of their lives, that they must be industrious, clean in person and dress and living, self-respecting and respecting others. On a line with these things were the four wonderful revivals of religion in the first five years, which led, in 1835, to the constitution of the Wake Forest Baptist Church. Other epochal events were: the erection of the College Building (finished 1837), which gave the College a local habitation; the formation of the Philomathesian and Euzebian Literary societies (1835); the running of the railroad through the Institution's land (1837); the abandonment of the manual labor feature and the laying out of the town of Wake Forest towards the end of the year 1838.

The CLASSES

THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

AFTER graduation, more Wake Forest College seniors enter the teaching profession than go into any other occupation. This year, for instance, 35 of the 105 members of the graduating class are meeting requirements for the High School Teacher's certificate, Class A, and will be available for positions.

Just how these teachers are measuring up is reflected in a statement by Dr. Frank P. Bachman, ex-secretary of the General Education Board of New York City, who said, "On the basis of facts contained in a recent survey of teacher training in colleges and universities of the Southern States, Wake Forest College, in proportion to its enrollment, is making a greater contribution to the teaching personnel of North Carolina than any higher institution of learning within its borders."

This year in North Carolina there were 177 Old Gold and Black school executives. Of this number there were two representatives each on the State Board of Education and Board of Equalization, 5 members of the State Department of Public Instruction, 9 college presidents (in North Carolina), 12 city school superintendents, 23 county school superintendents, and 156 high school principals. Of course, in addition to these, there were several hundred teachers, too numerous to mention.

J. L. M.

WINGATE

EARLY DAYS OF WAKE FOREST

WHEN the institution became a college it was encumbered with a debt of $20,000. To pay this and to provide the College with an endowment was the common problem of the Trustees and all the Presidents until the Civil War. Through the powerful political influence of General Alfred Dockery and other members of the Board of Trustees a loan of $10,000 was secured from the Literary Fund of the State and half of the debt thus temporarily provided for. The other half was due to Captain John Berry, the builder of the College Building. For this he took a note, and with great patience and kindness waited for its payment. To get the money to meet these obligations the Trustees kept their Agents in the field almost continuously for twenty years. The people were saying: "It is the College, the College, the College, all the time." These Agents, however, were among the ablest and wisest men of the denomination, and though at first they made slow progress, they finally not only secured the funds for paying the debts but also for endowing and equipping the College. The first of these was Wait, who while President spent almost half his time among the churches. He made no great collections, barely enough to pay expenses and the accruing interest, but he did enough to save the honor of the College, and with the help of the Trustees, who wrote their private endorsements on all the notes, to keep the Institution going. Partly owing to the absence of Wait, and partly owing to the fact that for the first part of his presidency all the professors except one were from the North attendance fell off greatly, being only 41 in the fall term of 1843-44, and nearly as low the next year. The College graduated no one in 1842, 1844, or 1845. With a sad heart but with unflagging zeal for the College Wait gave up the presidency in June, 1845.

Dr. William Hooper, a true son of North Carolina and one of the ablest scholars and writers the State has yet produced, was elected President in October, 1845, but did not enter on his work until January, 1847; he remained in this position until December 15, 1848. His connection with the College brought a renewal of interest in many who had become cold towards it; caused increased efforts to pay off the debt, and brought a much larger enrollment. Among the students who came under his stimulating influence were Archibald McDowell, Henry Bate Folk, Washington Manly Wingate, and David Richard Wallace, men as able as any the College has turned out.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

"EVENTS make time memorable." The class of 1934, the "Centennial Class," is a memorable one in many respects. It is with a sense of pride that we recall some of the events that have transpired during our sojourn here. In the fall of 1930 some 226 young men, coming from "Murphy to Manteo," arrived to be initiated into the college life under the tutelage of the Sophomores, "the rulers of the campus." Ours was the class which has the distinction of ushering in the administration of that beloved son of Wake Forest, who is leading Alma Mater to greater influence and glory. We witnessed the end of the long years of usefulness of the historic old Wait Hall. For us the loss seemed irreparable. Something that seemed an integral part of our conception of Wake Forest was missing. Then came the crowning shock—the loss of Wingate Hall. The spacious new structure just completed ushers in the "new deal" for Wake Forest. She is just started on her mission of usefulness for the youth of our land.

Today the class of '34 is not original. Many of the original number have fallen by the wayside. Some encountered misfortunes, while others found the going too heavy amidst discouragements and admitted defeat. There still remains, however, the nucleus of the "Old Guard," but a number of men from other schools and classes have filled out the depleted ranks.

Our class mates have filled ably, during the four years, the positions of the campus, distinguishing themselves in athletics, forensics, scholastics, and the various other activities of the campus. We pride ourselves upon having a class that has provided more than our share of leaders. Practically every campus activity was ably guided by the members of this class.

To those who have directed our faltering footsteps along the path of knowledge, who have condoned our follies, who have rejoiced with us in our triumphs, we would pay our tribute and invoke the richest blessings of the future on their work. The results of their unwavering devotion and assiduous efforts to train men are seen as yet but faintly. Only the future will reveal how many lives they have stimulated to heroic deeds of service.

Looking backward, there is a longing for a chance to retrieve many of the opportunities we have so thoughtlessly squandered. But that is not to be at any price or effort. Looking at the present, we see a vast field of service to be rendered to mankind. In order to attain the greatest degree of usefulness in the future there must be a process of discrimination and a continuous selection of the better opportunities of service.

Tomorrow we hearken to the call of service to the world—and may we spend our lives, our fortunes be what they may, in the service of all mankind. In departing we pledge to Alma Mater our unswerving loyalty. May she ever maintain and enhance her noble traditions and worthy ideals. May—

"This fond attachment to the well-known place
Whence first we started into life's long race
Maintain its hold with such unfailing sway
We feel it e'en in age, and our latest day."

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

WE, the Senior Class of Nineteen Hundred Thirty-four being of sound mind and healthy body, realizing the uncertainty of life and facing the innumerable tasks, expectations, and dangers of the future, and desiring to leave our immediate society in good faith and confidence with the world, and hoping to apportion our vast possessions in a manner that will prove most beneficial to those concerned, do hereby, by this our Last Will and Testament, revoking and declaring null and void any and all wills previously made by us.

Of our boundless estate which we have inherited, earned, or stolen during our collegiate abode, we hereby pronounce the following disposition:

ITEM 1. To our Alma Mater we leave our inexpressible love, adoration and continued loyalty as recompense for her invaluable service to us and to mankind in general.

ITEM 2. To the faculty we give and bequeath our appreciation for the opportunity of sitting at their feet and partaking of their mechanistic knowledge. We further leave our wishes that each member will soon be provided with adequate classroom and office facilities, books, maps, and watches.

ITEM 3. To the incoming Senior Class we give and bequeath a portion of our dignity, keeping a portion for our own future use because we realize that we will never again acquire it in such amnesia. We further give and bequeath all lecture notes and discarded typewriter ribbons.

ITEM 4. To the incoming Junior class we give and bequeath our ability to "arg" the professors and all rights and opportunities of dates at Metrolin, hoping that no one will have cause for dispute with the chapter.

ITEM 5. To the incoming Sophomore class we give and bequeath our much-used pipes, hats, and book-stands, and content over the Freshman.

ITEM 6. To the incoming Freshman class we give and bequeath our bath tickets, unused scrimmage line, and the privilege of outwitting the Sophomores when possible.

ITEM 7. To the incoming Law students we give and bequeath the right of leadership in political affairs, the use of our compact sleeves, and loyal support of their future legal endeavors.

ITEM 8. To the Medical classes we give and bequeath the place which is lawfully ours in the New Chapel, and fair political competition with the Law school.

ITEM 9. To the armistices we give and bequeath the right to organize and control "Sky Hill" as they so desire, and leave our admiration and best wishes for their courageous victory over their many serious handicaps.

ITEM 10. We give and bequeath all gasoline, motor oil, and tools found in abandoned automobiles to Dr. A. C. Reid and Professor Jasper L. Memory, Jr. in order that they may continue the task of securing contributions for our college.

ITEM 11. To the annualized Order of Royal Gluttons, whose representatives are found in each boarding house, we give and bequeath our best table etiquette, including larger plates and more room for the elbows.

ITEM 12. To the Dekate Squad, whose representatives have brought honor to the noble name of Wake Forest many times during our four-year stay, we give and bequeath our supply of "bovine effervescence," which is unsurpassed in volume and quality. We further leave our hope that the squad will in the future receive its deserved financial and moral support.

ITEM 13. To the Coeds we give and bequeath our scholastic influence, hoping that it will be a means of providing entrance to institutions created for their sex.

ITEM 14. To the fraternities we give and bequeath all discarded bottles, tuxedos, and hair tonic, hoping that in the future the organizations will become true brotherhoods.

ITEM 15. To the invaluable literary societies, from whom, by our addition, we have derived lasting benefits, we extend our congratulations on their acquisition of new halls and leave our best wishes for more successful forensic activities.

ITEM 16. To the Band and Glee Club we give and bequeath our desire that their labors will soon be rewarded and stimulated by the installation of a department of Music.

ITEM 17. To those who uphold the Old Gold and Black in the various athletic endeavors we give and bequeath our undying loyalty and praise.

ITEM 18. We leave to our various editors the wish that they may, with the aid of efficient writers, be permitted to produce debt-free, irresponsible publications.

ITEM 19. To the Alumni of our college we give and bequeath our sincere appreciation for the fine spirit they have shown to the institution during our abode and hope that we may prove worthy of inclusion in their number.

ITEM 20. To the many friends of the college we give and bequeath our admiration and deep appreciation for their contributions and kind deeds.

ITEM 21. To our parents, whose unflinching love, trust, and sacrifice has been instrumental in making possible our achievements, we give and bequeath our eternal love and service.

ITEM 22. To anyone whom we have overlooked, we give and bequeath a lifelong contact with our dynamic personalities, feeling assured that such contact will be of mutual value to them.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we, the testators of the class of "Thirty-four," have set our hands and seal to this, our will, this the twenty-eighth day of February, anno domini, one thousand nine hundred thirty-four.

THE TESTATOR

HOWLER

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

"Oh, had some power the gifte give us to see ourselves as others see us," is an oft-quoted verbiage expressing a wish that we all very often have, and if by some chance one of us was suddenly enabled to peep into the future he would no doubt see tragedy, comedy, romance, mirth, regrettable and unheard of things in store for all the members of the Class of '34.

First of all perhaps we would see attorneys Ratley, Gurley, and Shaz Hayes earnestly engaged in research work trying to find out when and where the Laws of Gravity were passed.

Al Hayes has continued his interest in the band in a big way for at present he is at the head of a notorious band in the vicinity of Chicago. Ellis R. Ellington has successfully completed and forgotten his law courses in favor of radio and—well—can't see what her name is. Ike O'Hanlon and Duane Wilson finally won a whole case, and are they celebrating. They will probably drink it all up before any of their friends begin willing to see them. Malodon Paul and Sam Howard are trying to enter politics but can't find any political rings.

The Medical School has and still is producing a great array of leading citizens. The Howell Brothers are operating a traveling medicine show, Charles is the "Doc" and Julius is the entertainer who has several fascinating tricks, one of which is to make snakes and doves completely and permanently disappear.

Herman Stevens and Yulan Washburn are operating a hospital, their speciality being after working hours. Garzanti, Williamson and Patton are the executive officers of the Keweenaw Pili Co. They spend most of their time cursing the good health of the country. Luther Fulcher is trying to perfect a medicine to cure spring fever mixed a solution that created such bad times that all the people in Stacy have been wearing clothes pins on their noses for more than a week. Doctors Hanmon and Beavers have conceived a medicine for the sure and quick relief of Bonners Thumbs.

Bowling, Bowling and Company (not Inc.) are on East Street, running a mail order barber shop. They won't explain how they do it, saying that it is their own secret.

Ed. Schabale is Editor-in-Chief of the Friday Morning paper but is thinking of discontinuing the publication due to the fact that his subscribers will not pay. Hake Norris is also engaged in the field of journalism. You'd probably see a great deal of his work for he is writing under the pen name, Thod.

Many are engaged in the arts of instructing the youth of the land. Some are even hard-boiled college profs who give pops every day. B. Flowers has a Ph.D. now and is president of Perry Dillard's European College. L. M. Yates and Jimmie Partin are authorities on how fish run their schools. C. W. Massey has discontinued being a professor and has made good in his own home town in another way. He has developed himself into a real police and fire department, having brass buttons on his coat, big flat feet and everything.

Wyman Washburn is cashing in on his laking ability selling ice cream to the Eskimos.

"Stark" Steing has developed into a prize fighter with a "Punchy" technique and success has been with him all the time for he has only been knocked out once and that he did himself, while shadow boxing.

Bill Herering and "Nig" Allen have blasted their way right into the Major league as strike out kings. Bill is pitching and "Nig" is hitting. Matheson went due in ten ball until he developed an acute case of kind heartedness. Joe became so kind hearted that he wouldn't even try to get a hit when the pitcher found himself in a hole.

George Noel carried several of his former classmates on a Scientific expedition everywhere trying to find the reason why the White Sea is white, why the Red Sea is red, who killed the Dead Sea, and the answers to other similar questions.

Sidney Allen has become the great lover of the Screen, and everywhere anti-Allen clubs are being formed to prevent any further abatement of affections.

"Deacon" Myers has won the Hog Culling Championship of thirteen countries and is looking for new pastures to conquer.

Pete Darselt has made astounding discoveries in physics. He has invented a contraption by which the future can be read and officially makes the statement that all future class prophecies need have no worry.

SENIOR CLASS POEM

I STOOD alone this morning on a hill.
And all was very quiet there, and still.
I heard the sound of no big city street
Whereon the steps of busy people meet.
But as I stood and watched the coming day,
It seemed I heard a million people pray.
The prayer I heard this morning in the hills
Was for a host of men who have strong wills.
Young men with keen, and clear, and vibrant minds,
And with determination, strong, that binds
Them to the work that lies ahead. They ask
For men who have a vision for the task.

The challenge of those million prayers I heard
Has come to us, and there will be no word
Of doubt or fear. We will go out this day
And give our service to the ones who pray.

HISTORY

THE sun shone bright and hot September 14, 1931, as some 244 students left their homes to enter Wake Forest for the first time. We went through a day of misinterpretation—something new for the most of us. At the close of the day many of us didn't ever want to see a 'mo' again, but in spite of this we donned our best clothes and went to the reception given in our honor. We felt quite important meeting Dr. Kitchin and all the rest of our professors. The next day the upperclassmen came in, and we found out then that we were greets. They made us put on a black cap and a gold tie. We looked so badly with them that no fresh class since has had to go through the same thing. They were our stamp of approval that we were "greenies," and if we were naughty the Freshman Court made us wear a green cap.

After our "buttoning" period was over we were led astray and went into politics. We elected to lead us our first year, Rivers Hanson of Wilmington. Other officers were Henry Liles, secretary; C. B. Davis, treasurer; Jack Murdochson, legislator, and John Porter, poet. While these men took care of the governmental end of the class others went out for literary societies, forensics, student publications, athletics, and religious activities. Our football team brought us glory by tying for state champs. The year went by hurriedly, and all of us were glad to become sophomores.

After a few months of vacation we came back feeling that we were firmly fixed in the saddle. At this time we got a better taste of the real Wake Forest spirit. Our officers this time were: William Valiva, president; V. B. Gavin, vice president; G. P. Hendricks, treasurer; R. T. Wilder, secretary; Jack

GRIFFIN

Murchison, student councilman; J. F. Fletcher, legislator; John Porter, poet; and C. U. Harris, historian. Our football team this year was made up largely of members from our class, among whom were: Wall, Swan, Hardee, Falkenberg, Myers, Holton, Clark, and DeAngelis. In all the other extra curricula activities we sophomores figured just as strong.

This year the class of '35 was much enlarged because of the wholesale importation of students from Mars Hill, Campbell, Wingate, and Boiling Springs. These boys quickly fell in line with us in our march for our diplomas which we hope to obtain next spring. More of our men became outstanding in college life. C. U. Harris edited the Howler and Thompson (Greenwood) put out the Student. Jack Murchison and others won laurels by debating. Pat Swan again made all-state tackle. And still others led in the religious activities of the campus.

Our officers for this year are: W. J. Campbell, president; T. S. Gilliam, vice president; John Watson, secretary-treasurer; student councilmen, Henry Liles, C. I. Harris, and W. C. Thomas; poet, Junius Martin; and historian, George Griffin. We, although we are the first class of the second century, join heartily this year in the celebration of one hundred years existence of the college, and strive to carry on her high ideals and principles.

GEORGE G. GRIFFIN,
Historian.

MARCHONS

SWORDS drawn, heads up, and feet secure
We charge a common foe.
We fall, we rise, we must endure
For Truth—the grace to grow,

Bleak Ignorance, our enemy,
Mendacity's ally,
You cannot stand, you shall not stand;
We'll win or else we'll die.

Peace, stand aside! Mars, hear our prayer
For succor in the fray,
Give courage to believe, to dare—
May Truth be King for aye.

Attention! March! We fight for Truth,
We'll never sue for Peace,
Until this war 'gainst Falsity
Is won, for Truth's release.

HISTORY

THE members of the Class of '36 armed with high school diplomas which certified that they were physically and mentally (?) qualified to undertake the stupendous task of assuming the responsibilities of college life arrived at Wake Forest in September, 1932. They began perhaps the happiest days of their existence. Had you been here you would have noticed some two hundred fifty young gentlemen (?) walking about the campus carrying trunks and suitcases (mostly for upperclassmen). The first two weeks passed quickly. After going through the academical cafeteria, of which the dietitian was the registrar, courses were selected for our scholastic nourishment. Then we were entertained by the faculty and, mostly, by the young ladies of the metropolis (Wake Forest) at a reception. After this, there was a series of lectures designed to give the first year man an insight on the customs and traditions of Wake Forest. Gradually we became orientated to our new home and began to stroll within its walls as if we owned it. (This was in the day time of course: We were not unconscious of the barbarous hair-cutting escapades that had taken place on numerous occasions in previous years). We finally got situated and settled to a year of hard, hard work. These long periods of hard work were broken only by infrequent trips (one or two a week) to one of Wake Forest's smaller suburbs commonly known as Raleigh and to Meredith College (Uncle Charlie Brewer's Angel Farm). In October we elected the following figure heads (bonchheads) to lead us through the trials and tribulations of fresh life. Pres., Galt Hatcher; V. Pres., Sam Smith; Sec., Milton Dement; Treas., Thurman Ross; Poet, Frank Norris; Histo., Wellington Dunford. We learned a great many things, among which the most outstanding in our minds was how to perform the thumb drill, and how to "button." As historian it makes my heart happy to report that one of our honorable number, C. B. Toxey, received the B. V. D. degree in buttoning (B. V. D.—Buttons Very Daintily.) After performing that arduous task for six blocks up Faculty Avenue and back at the command and to the merriment of a number of upperclassmen, The ring committee appointed by the president did very well. (They signed six contracts and got away with it.) Among the other important events of that memorable year were: First, some of our members voluntarily joined the "Royal and Mystic order of the Q-ball" and others the "Onion Club" (They paraded the campus with their heads slick as cue balls or peeled onions). Second, several freshmen became members of Wake Forest's Southern Champion debate teams. Third, our athletes (paid) romped to glory on the diamond, gridiron, the track, and the court. The year came to a close after a series of strenuous examinations.

After so eventful a year it is no wonder that this, the second year of our college life, has been particularly uneventful. We elected the above listed officers who have acquitted themselves honorably. Our members have distinguished themselves in all the extracurricular activities, especially in athletics, literary work, forensics, and in the religious organizations. As this year comes to a close we look forward to the future thinking of it somewhat as the poet did when he wrote:

"Tomorrow? Shall the fleeting years
Abide our questioning? They go
All heedless of our hopes and fears.
Tomorrow? 'Tis not ours to know
That we again shall see the flowers.
'Tomorrow is the gods'—but, oh
Today is ours!"

SOPHOMORE CLASS POEM

WE cease our useless thinking of the past;
We cannot change the placing of the stars.
Why spend our lives in counting little sears?
The pain has left—the wounds are healing fast.

Swift Time speeds on, and soon we shall be free
To use our wits to get our daily bread;
Now Fortune leads a merry chase ahead,
And Power lures us onward constantly.

Two years have passed; we have a little gain.
We must know all, and now we know in part.
With knowledge there to offer us a start,
Who knows how far we'll go, what heights attain?

HISTORY

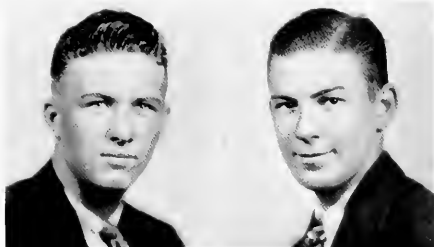

UPON entering Wake Forest the Freshman class of '37 had two very important distinctions from any class before this time. First, this is the hundredth anniversary of the school, and it so happens that we are the only class that could possibly enroll in this historical year. Second, this is the largest class ever to enroll at Wake Forest, and the fact is still more noticeable since we are, as a whole, the ugliest bunch ever to begin here.

After going through a very trying week of registration and lectures, we began our classes. Up to date none of us have made any lower grades than the upperclassmen, but not many of us have made higher ones. Very few of our class have flunked out and as a whole we have had a very good year according to grades.

On their first entrance into college athletics the Wake Forest Freshmen proved themselves to be outstanding. Presenting the strongest Freshmen football team seen in this state in many years, they easily captured the State Championship and were only regretful that they were limited to five games. Prospects for next year's varsity were seen in the Baby Deacons, and here's hoping they live up to our expectations. So far our Freshman basketball team has not been very successful, but after playing together for such a short time not much can be expected. However we are looking for great things from these boys during the remainder of their schedule.

One of the old "Spanish customs" on this campus (it seems) that is to keep a Freshman in his place. The supreme law is: A freshman shall not be cocky; and the upperclassmen see to it that we keep very humble. We learned to "button" very efficiently, were initiated into the "Strong Arm Club," and were made life members of the "House of Pain," which by the way is not a movie.

HOWLER

Just before exams started, someone on the campus read in a book that a person with a great deal of hair could not be very brilliant—that hair and brains are not a good combination. He proceeds to tell a few other fellows until some kind hearted group of boys decide that they will do all in their power to keep our hair from bothering us during examinations, and a general epidemic of hair cutting follows. At present not only the freshmen but everyone on the campus is living in a state of terror, expecting that any minute he may have to bid his hair farewell.

After we had been here a very short while we all noticed how friendly everyone was. Boys spoke to us as if they knew us and soon we learned that this was also a custom—speak to everyone you meet no matter how many times a day you meet him.

The first business meeting of the class was for the election of officers. Fred Sides from Asheville was chosen President. Picking a man living all the way across the state, Doug Johnson from Fayetteville was elected to the Vice Presidency. Then deciding on a man from the south central part of the state as a "Balance of Power," Paul Sholar of Charlotte was elected Secretary-Treasurer. These boys are very popular on the campus and are very well fitted for their positions. Sides received the honor of being one of the society day debaters and proved himself a very capable man, and one the freshman class should be proud of.

Need I say that we have already attached ourselves to this old school with a very dear affection. We truly respect every building here and realize that they represent a hundred years of learning. Many great men have studied in the same rooms in which we labor daily, and this campus has been graced by many in whose footsteps we would do well to follow. It is with this acknowledgment that we reverence the name of our Alma Mater, and strive to live up to the standards set by those whose memory is cherished by us all.

FRESHMAN CLASS POEM

I KNOW there's a spirit in these old walls,
How beautiful they stand though cracked and old,

As they form the peaceful, reverent, aged halls
Whose memories entreat us. Behold!

Be still, my friends, as leaves of time turn back:
The new bronze bell in Wait Hall rings

In vibrant, melodious peals, and in its rack
Its bronzed newness sparkles as it swings,
Now through these halls young men of years gone by

To either rooms or class go to and fro,
They're clothed in peg leg pants, stiff collars, high,
And some in checkered suits—a bygone show.
They yell our college yells and sing our songs
In gay, collegiate, exuberant, loyal throngs,
Debate and speak, and test their skill at sports—

On Latin, Greek, and math make good reports.
Now on into the world they go,
Succeeding, faithful, and aglow

With true Wake Forest spirit, gay, unflinching, pure.

This spirit and our faith are lasting bonds
That bind us with the past that's but an overture
Of what is yet to come. It corresponds
As dawn to day. And we, the rising infant class
Of thirty-seven, come to take our place,
Three-fifty strong, with all of those who this way pass.

And we will run an even better race
Than those of former days to mark this hundred years

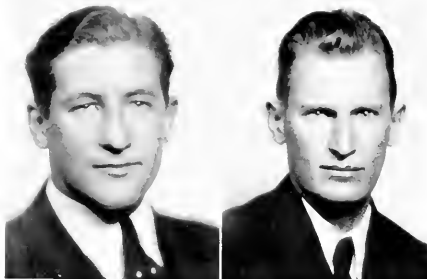

Advance full well; we'll all prove worthy of our pioneers.

HISTORY

FROM the many corners of this state and several others a heterogeneous corps of would-be medical students began to bring their tottering frames up the two flights of stairs in the old med building to the "OW's Room" (disserting room) to learn the many relations of the many parts of the human anatomy. We found by painful experience that we could learn the subject of anatomy by running up the light bill of the college. This we did without hesitation.

We met anatomy class the first time on the 15th day of September, 1932. We were all settled on our stools and the door was suddenly opened. Who come in? you guess! Dr. Vann. We had to rap our legs about the many stools to keep from losing our places. Our hearts were in our throats as we were informed that we would have to study just a little (just a little after midnight).

The year went on and we all suffered together and from time to time we were informed that some of us were slightly dumb (we don't know whether the term was meant in a figurative sense or literal sense, perhaps literal). No one knows except the members of the class and our predecessors, of the agony that we have experienced.

In the fall of 1933 we moved into our new building on the north side of the campus. The new edifice was erected in memory of William Amos Johnson. In shifting our activities to this new building, we have the distinction of being the first class to graduate in the new building and the last class to leave the old.

HOWLER

ANDRICK

BYRD

Now the hideousness of the past has, we hope, reached its termination and like Alexander the Great, we shall go forth and seek new worlds to conquer.

There are men in our class who will be great men in the days to come. Ray O'Brien will probably seek to determine the effect of physostigma upon acute gangrenous appendicitis. Don Aron will no doubt discover some scheme by which one man can secure a medical education for two. Robert Cushing Deryshire will seek to discover if the Flexor Pollicis Longus and Flexor Pollicis Brevis can be separated by a saw driven by a Fordson tractor. "Sag" Walker will doubtless end up as an authority on Peptic ulcer and the effect of Sodium Bicarbonate upon alcohol. Andy Chesson will probably do research work upon the tiny nodules found upon the roots of pea vines.

Like all assemblages of such a versatile nature the Class of '34 is capable of participation in various and sundry fields, but so far no other talent has been shown. We feel sure that however, that in years to come important history will be made by us. We leave you therefore with an unfinished manuscript, and we sincerely hope that you will follow closely the achievements of the aspiring medics here assembled and at some future date the history of the class, begun so diligently in the fall of 1932, will be completed and recorded.

HISTORY

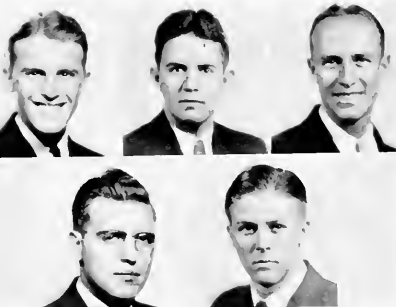

MORE than once it has been said, "Let the past be forgotten; it is now history and can't be changed." This quotation is unquestionably true, and no one would desire to change the history of the Wake Forest Law School if such were possible.

The history of the Wake Forest Law School, since its establishment in 1893, has been one of many achievements and successes, and the year just finished has been no exception in this noble history. The credit for this noble and illuminating history goes to our efficient and well-versed law faculty, which is headed by our beloved Mr. N. Y. Gouley, and who has been ably assisted by Professors Timberlake, White and Lake, who is completing his second year, as a member of the faculty, but has shown that he is the proper one to help in continuing the high standards of the Law School.

Now, let us turn back and briefly review the history of the year 1933-34. At the beginning of the present term sixty-seven students were enrolled and began or continued their study in the vast field of their chosen profession. The enrollment of the class, due to stricter entrance requirements, was not as large as the classes of years past, but, may we say, it was one not of quantity, but one of quality. There were twenty-six members of the first year class, twenty-three members of the second year class, fourteen members of the third year class and four special students. At the end of the first semester fourteen members of this number, mostly of the third year class who had completed their courses, departed from us to begin practicing their learning, skill and wits with the many others, whom are already in the practice of their profession. This greatly diminished our ranks and these losses were keenly felt in the classes, although several new men came in to take their places.

We can venture to say that the Law School of 1933-34 is the only one, at least in several years, that has had two complete sets of officers to direct its destinies. This unusual occurrence was made necessary because of the graduation at the end of the first semester of practically all of the class officers. The direct destinies of the class, for the first semester, T. L. Smith was elected to lead us and he was assisted by W. J. Pittman, vice president, and Garland L. Midyette, secretary-treasurer. For the second semester, J. T. Hicks was chosen president; W. A. Herring, vice president; and C. W. Teague, secretary-treasurer.

During our study and preparation for the legal profession there was made a change by the legislature in the method of examining an applicant for the right to practice law in the state. In January the newly created State Board of Examiners, for the first time, conducted the examining of the applicants and not the Supreme Court which had been accustomed to so doing in the past years. There were eight applicants from our group and of this number six were successful in obtaining licenses.

For the first time in several years compulsory attendance and participation at Moot Court was strictly enforced. Moot Court was held each Thursday night with Professor Lake acting as judge, third and second year students as attorneys in the actions and first year men as jurors. Many of us may not realize now the value and purpose of these practice courts, which is to familiarize us with regular court practice and procedure, but will be aware of its untold benefit when we commence to practice at the bar. Another thing of great benefit and interest to many of us is the Barristers' Club, which is just as important in the study of law as any of the courses that we are pursuing. There is a familiar expression that one may have great knowledge, but if unable to express himself, it is worth little. Thus the object of the club is to aid its members to express themselves in a creditable manner before any type of audience. The Club has been organized only two years but it is increasing continually in membership and rapidly attaining its object.

The Law School is not wholly concerned with study in the field of law, but it is represented in practically every phase of college life. From our ranks W. Scott Buck was chosen vice president of the student body and elected into membership of the Golden Bough, and W. S. Babcock was named a member of the student council. There were also among our group outstanding members of the debate team, O'Hanon, president of the Pan-Hellenic Council; R. F. VanLandingham, business manager of the HOWLER, college annual, and members of other publications and in the various religious, social and club organizations and literary societies upon the campus.

In the athletic activities during the past year, members of the Law School played a small, but an important part. In football, Wilson, who was captain of the team and O'Hanon were our representatives, and in baseball Herrington was the mainstay of the pitching staff. Although not as active in athletics as heretofore, there were three members of the class—Gillespie, Hinks and Barnes—whom in recent seasons had made a name for the college and themselves upon the baseball field. Too the Law School was represented in the Intramural Basketball league with a fast quint, known as the Brindle Bulls, and at the end of the season was among the highest ranking teams of the league.

As we look back upon the past year's work, we have found our work pleasant, although at times some of us may have thought it seemingly difficult. However, we are hoping our labor, our aims and our aspirations will materialize in greater achievements, not only in our worthy profession but also in the numerous political, religious and social opportunities that will present themselves in our battle and associations with mankind, and it is with this thought in mind that we have pushed on from day to day. Too, we realize our success and achievements will be due in a great measure to the careful training of our esteemed faculty, and we cannot praise too highly and attribute too much credit to those who have given much of their time, untiring efforts and cooperation in every respect.

As a closing word, it can be said that the Law School, and especially the Class of '33, '34, has added another strong and unbreakable link to the long chain of successes and achievements that has been its in years past and sincerely hope that this chain will continue to become longer and stronger in the future.

THE SCHOOL OF LAW

SINCE its organization in 1895, the Wake Forest College School of Law has turned out, under the direction of Dean N. Y. Gulley and his associates, 1,504 lawyers. There are at present approximately 1,900 practicing attorneys in North Carolina.

Numbered among illustrious Wake Forest alumni who are now prominent in this field are all three Federal Judges in the State of North Carolina—E. Yates Webb, Isaac M. Meekins, and Johnson J. Hayes. United States Senator Josiah William Bailey and Attorney General Dennis G. Brummitt are likewise wearers of Old Gold and Black.

Since 1912, two Wake Foresters have served as Governors of North Carolina—T. W. Bickett and William Walton Kitchin, brother of the Wake Forest President.

The Law School is meeting the requirements of the American Association of Law Schools.

Faculty members in this school are: Dean Needham Y. Gulley, Professor R. Bruce White, Professor E. W. Timberlake, Jr., Professor I. Beverley Lake, and Librarian Donald Gulley.

EARLY DAYS OF WAKE FOREST

During the presidency of John Brown White, who succeeded Hooper in June, 1849, and with some intermissions continued in the place until the fall of 1853, the Berry note was paid in full and the greater part of the debt to the State was also paid, and a good beginning made towards an endowment, in the shape of scholarships. The Agents of the College were all the time busy, the last one in this period being Wingate, and they created much interest in the College in all sections of the State. The enrollment also was good and among the students were many who attained great prominence in later life, Jack Mills, A. J. Emerson, T. H. Pritchard, and others.

In Wingate, who took the helm in June, 1854, Wake Forest had one of her own sons as President. For two years he had traveled through all parts of the State as Agent for the College and had become known to the people and won their confidence both in his ability and his character. With him as President the denomination in the State manifested an interest in the Institution greater than ever before and gave it a much more general support. In 1856-57 fifty thousand dollars was added to its endowment, in addition to nearly the same amount in scholarships previously obtained. In 1859 the College was able to discontinue all preparatory work. Then came the Civil War, bringing the cessation of operation of the College in 1862, and taking most of the endowment.

FORENSICS

FEATURED by fifteen home debates, participation in three forensic tournaments, the use of four queries, and the winning of seventy-three per cent of the thirty decision contests, the Wake Forest debate teams close the most active and successful debate season on record. The prize feature was participation in the Tenth Biennial Convention of Pi Kappa Delta, National Forensic Fraternity, which met in Lexington, Ky. By virtue of five wins out of seven, the team of Murchison and Myers was rated among the first eighteen in the nation. Murchison placed in the upper half in the extemp contest, while Myers was given a similar rating in oratory. H. Clay Cox was alternate debater.

At the Tri-State Tournament in Greensboro, two teams composed of H. Clay Cox, George Copple, J. C. Murchison, and Donald G. Myers won the title of North Carolina champions. Myers won first place in after dinner speaking, and Charles U. Harris, Jr., took third place in extemp.

At the Southern tournament, meeting in Birmingham, Murchison and Myers won four out of six debates, while Myers took third place in extemp and captured the title as Southern champion after dinner speaker. George Copple, as alternate debater on this trip, showed up well in the oratorical contest. One radio broadcast was given.

The queries used were on the topics of increase in the Powers of the President, the NRA, theism versus humanism, and radio control. The total number of debates was fifty-seven.

Following are a few of the colleges defeated by Deacon speakers:

Alabama, Auburn, Bucknell, N. C. State, Florida, Davidson, South Dakota State, Akron University, Louisiana, South Carolina.

SOCIETY DAY

A COMBINATION Society and Home Coming Day presented a spectacle rarely seen in this quiet college community. In the morning W. Wyan Washburn, president, and George T. Noel, Jr., secretary of Society Day, helplessly looked on from their elevated desks, as Fred Sides and Donald G. Myers, representatives of Euzelean, won a hotly contested debate over Jack Murchison and W. Scott Buck—the cream of the Philomathesian forensic crop.

The two societies were hosts to 400 young ladies. That afternoon, seven thousand fans watched State College and Wake Forest battle to a scoreless tie in the first football game played in the new Gore field.

The second Euzelean success of the day was made when Charles U. Harris, Jr., won first place in the annual inter-society oratorical contest. A banquet at Miss Jo's at 6:30 and a reception at 9 completed a well rounded program.

FOUNDERS' DAY

TWO Baptist Colleges this year celebrated their centennials in like manner. Franklin College, Franklin, Indiana, and Wake Forest College both commemorated a "Century of Progress" by displays of forensic prowess. Here at Wake Forest this eventful day was marked by a Philomathesian victory in debate, two masterful orations, and an inspiring address by one of Wake Forest's best known sons. The Philomathesian debate team, composed of W. R. Dixon and Jack Murchison, wrested a hard earned victory from the Euzeilian veterans of debate, J. Winston Pearce and Donald G. Myers. William W. Finlator and Edward Chamblee, president and secretary respectively of Founders' Day, officiated with charm and dignity.

As an appropriate opening for the evening program, J. Glenn Blackburn and Charles U. Harris, Jr., delivered in faultless style orations of appealing force. Bernard W. Spilman delivered his masterful and appreciated address on "Yesterday Greets Tomorrow." No more fitting personality and subject could have been chosen than Dr. Spilman and his invigorating address. Founders' Day this year really meant something to both the participants and attendants.

ACTIVITIES

B. Y. P. U. began this year with an enrollment of 28 per cent more than any previous time. To take care of the new members, two additional unions were organized, namely, "M. T. Yates" and "J. W. Lynch." These quickly fell in line with the eight other unions and began doing sincere work which has characterized the organization throughout the year.

Early in the season the annual study courses were held which made it possible to carry on the work in a more efficient manner. In this work of study we were led by Miss Winnie Eickett, Miss Lucille Knight, and Miss Alpha Hunt. Extension programs under the direction of C. E. Schaible, vice president were given at W. C. T. U., C. Greenboro, Meredith, and several other nearby towns. The regular socials carried out in conjunction with Meredith B. Y. P. U. were among the high lights of the year.

Aside from the consistent work of the individual unions the best part of the B. Y. P. U. was our general assembly under the leadership of president, G. J. Griffin, whose labors played no small part in making the year's work a success. It was worth going to the service just to hear Glenn Blackburn, general secretary, give the reports. The cooperation received from the officers and members made possible the wonderful spirit which was felt throughout the year.

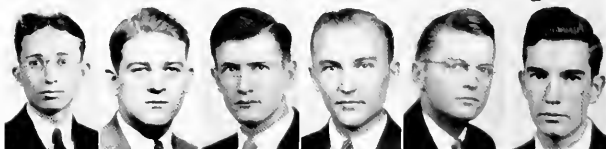

The organization sent three delegates to the Southwide B. Y. P. U. Convention at Nashville.

HISTORY AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS

In the fall of 1933, a group of Methodist students discussed together the possibilities of organizing a decidedly Methodist group on the Wake Forest campus. Although these men were active in the Baptist religious movements on the campus, they recognized in themselves a need for a continued contact with their own denomination.

As a result of this, a meeting of all the Methodist students attending Wake Forest College, of which there are nearly one hundred, was called for Sunday afternoon, November 5, in Wingate Hall, since destroyed by fire.

At this meeting, W. R. Dixon of Rocky Mount was elected temporary chairman of the group, and given the duty of forming a permanent organization. On the following Sunday, the first formal meeting of the group was held, at which time its present set of officers were elected.

The official name of the group is the "Wesleyan Students Association"; which Association is the formal college students organization of the Methodist Church, South.

The purpose of the Association is to advance the religious life of all students in every way possible, and to retain a decided contact among its members with the Methodist Church, South.

As its first piece of constructive work, the Association began a series of studies on the life of Christ which were led by members of the Wake Forest faculty, students and, at intervals, by visitors from the faculties of other colleges and members of the Methodist Educational Board.

As a further means of advancing the kingdom's work, the Methodists began on Wednesday evening, April 8, a series of prayer meetings, one to be held each Wednesday in the room of one of its members. These were attended by a large number of men, and served to show that there was a willingness on the part of the students, regardless of denomination, to cooperate in such a movement.

This organization has just closed its first year on this campus. It is open to all men, regardless of denomination, but especially encourages those of the Methodist Church. It seeks to be of service to God, and to man, and as an organization, desires earnestly to become a valuable one on the Wake Forest campus.

CLASS HISTORY

At 6:30 p.m. on the evening of September 20, 1933, a number of men were to be seen gathering in one of the classrooms of the law building. Rev. J. Winston Pearce then called to order the 100th ministerial class of the college, and introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. W. L. Potest.

HOWLER

During the first semester of the year Mr. Pearce, with the cooperation of the group, and under the leadership and guidance of Dr. W. R. Cullum, who has been in direct charge of the class for 37 years, lead the class in a very efficient manner in such studies as: "The challenge of the present hour to the minister of Religion," and other kindred topics. At the close of the first semester we were unfortunate in losing some of our members, among whom was Mr. Pearce. He was succeeded as president by Mr. H. S. Fox, who held the office of vice president during the first semester. Mr. A. J. Vinokerooff was elected to succeed him as Vice President.

Although a number of our men failed to return the second semester, we gained several new men, and our number has remained between 70 and 75 throughout the year.

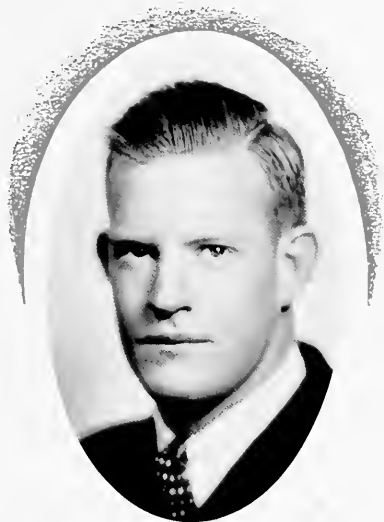

We have been fortunate in having Drs. W. L. Potent, Hubert Potent, Benjamin Sledd, A. C. Reid, G. W. Paschal, members of our own faculty, and Drs. J. R. Sanpey, John Lake, Clay I. Hudson, D. J. Evans, to address us some time during the year.

During the last semester Dr. Cullum has brought to the class inspiring messages and helpful discussions on various topics which face the minister. A fine spirit of fellowship and cooperation has been shown throughout the year.

As we go out into larger fields of work, we pray God's blessings upon those who shall follow us in future years in this class.

ATHLETICS

THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

THE Wake Forest School of Medicine was established in May, 1902. Its founders were motivated by a desire to meet the needs of the constituency of the college. It was felt that if it was preferable for a student to take his academic training under such an atmosphere as existed at Wake Forest, certainly it would be a good thing for him to take as much of his professional training here as possible, especially in a profession in which human sympathies are so vital.

Furthermore, the cost of medical training was rising so rapidly that many of our boys could not become doctors unless they could take two years of their course here. The Wake Forest School of Medicine combines three years of academic training with two years of medical training in such a way as to preserve the advantages of each and at the same time make it possible for students to graduate with the baccalaureate degree and medical degree in seven years. Upon completion of this work the college confers the degree of Bachelor of Science in Medicine, which admits the student to the third year in a medical college. Thus, time and expense are saved by this combination. It is an actual fact that, today, a boy taking his first two years of medicine at Wake Forest saves enough in money to pay one year of his expenses at any senior medical college.

This school of the college has been accredited by every related standardizing agency in America. It has the endorsement of the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association and is a member of the Association of Medical Colleges. As a result, graduates of our two-year medical school may register without condition for the last two years at any institution in which they wish to enroll.

EARLY DAYS OF WAKE FOREST

AFTER the War the College opened again in January, 1866, under Wingate and was one of the few Colleges to serve the State during all the dark period of Reconstruction. Wingate died in February, 1879. Perhaps the two greatest achievements of the Wingate administration were the improvement of the curriculum in the period before the War, and the manning of the chairs of the college with men of the highest type, William Royall, William Bailey Royall, Luther R. Mills, Charles Elisha Taylor and William Louis Poterat.

Wingate's successor, Thomas Henderson Pritchard, continued his policies, and in his first year made the enrollment greater than it had ever been before. Pritchard also revised the curriculum in the interest of scientific studies, with the purpose of making the College serve in the industrial development of the State.

A new day may be said to have begun for the College with the coming of Charles Elisha Taylor to the presidency in 1884. He had already conducted a great campaign which brought the endowment to $100,000; before he left the presidency he had secured funds and bequests which at present constitute full two-thirds of the present endowment of more than three million dollars. Other achievements of Dr. Taylor's administration were the improvement and modernizing of the curriculum, the establishment of the School of Law (1893), and of the School of Medicine (1902), the enlargement and improvement of the Campus, the erection of the Lea Chemical Laboratory (1888), the Gymnasium (1900); while the Alumni Building and the College Hospital were already projected or in process of erection when he gave up the presidency in 1905.

COLLEGE "annual" sports writers usually attempt to smooth over a bad season, and try, by the use of honeyed words, to make "our boys" feel better. But all the adjectives in the world will not alter the fact that, from the score keepers viewpoint, last fall's football season was unsuccessful, to put it mildly.

The sports world hates alibis. Yet the so-called Demon Deacons had more than their share last fall, if any football team ever did. First, and the main reason for the indifferent showing, was a very poorly arraigned schedule. There seems to be no person or place on which to put the blame. It merely seems an unfortunate and disastrous thing which no one could help. Still there was that terrible six game schedule. It caused staleness, breaking of training rules (no criticism), and natural indifference on the part of players. Coach Jim Weaver realized what he was bucking early in the season, and saw that he could only make the best of a bad situation. At that, he did a pretty good job of it.

looked like it had something at times. Then they would reverse things, and look like high school players. First on the tragic schedule came a "Big Five" game with Duke on October first at Duke. There were six weeks of preparation before this game, with no preliminary "warming up" tilt to put the boys on their toes. The coaches gave several lay-offs to help the team along with the listless waiting period, but six weeks in hot weather is a long time. As a result, a stale, dead-on-its-feet team faced Duke. The Blue Devils, really a great team, was on the long end of a 22 to 0 count.

Followed another two weeks waiting period. The Baptist's clearly played rings around State College on Gore Field on October 21, but lacked the necessary punch. Result: 0 to 0.

On the following week-end, October 27, Wake Forest marched up and down the field in the first half against Catholic University, played here. No score. Three touchdowns were called back by officials. Near the close of the first half, ten first string men were carried to the bench, injured.

The visitors got busy in the second half. Result: 12 to 0, C. U.

Cough Weaver took his team, representing Wake Forest College Infirmary, to Charlotte on October 4. Result: Clemson 13, Wake Forest 0.

A Carolina team, with a poor season behind it, and the big Duke game facing it, flung passes from one end of Keenan Stadium to the other on November 11. Result: 26 to 0, Carolina.

Came another long wait of nineteen days, with the big Davidson classic before the Deacons. The boys worked hard those three weeks, snarling under the title of the "scoreless wonders." "A touchdown or die" was the theme song. Nobody died.

On Thanksgiving day, November 30, in Charlotte, the Deacons played superb football for thirty minutes. Threatening time after time in the first half, Wake Forest finally crossed the "pay off" line, as Jim Weaver terms the last marker. Roy Myers, with splendid interference, was the hero. After the rest intermission, the same old staleness, plus one Johnny Mackorell, hit Wake Forest.

Before the Deacs knew what was what or how come, the Wildcats had scored three touchdowns. Then, with three minutes to play, Wake Forest snapped out of it. "Stork" Swing and David Holton snatched a couple of "Monk" Mason's beautiful passes, and Captain "Dunc" Wilson scored. But the revival came too late. Result: Davidson 20, Wake Forest 13.

Looking forward: There is a ten game schedule for next fall, with this gem in it: Wake Forest, for the first time in years, will have a game with a smaller school before a "Big Five" battle! Almost everyone will be back, and there is the state championship freshmen from which to draw, providing the students don't ruin that very valuable cockiness of theirs.

Coaches Jim Weaver, Murray Greason; Captain, Duncen Wilson; Manager, Herman Stevens.

Just this concluding remark:

If ever any person or persons arrange another football schedule like last year's it should be made a capital offense.

RESUME OF BASKETBALL SEASON

THE 1933-34 basketball season, while not overly-successful, is one of which neither coach, players nor student body need be ashamed. Considering the difficulties of a new coach, new positions to be filled, and a comparatively inadequate practice court, a record of five wins and nine losses should not be termed in any way a failure.

Coach Murray Gresson, a former three-letter man at Wake Forest came to us from high school coaching circles where he was one of the most popular, and considered one of the best coaches in the state. Facing a tough schedule and new material, he was able to produce a team that showed their opponents a grade A brand of competition. The team showed up surprisingly well against much more highly rated opponents, and attracted quite a bit of attention both inside and outside of the state. "Stork" Swing captained the squad and was assisted by Mulhern and Malloy, letter men of the previous season.

Catawba College helped the Deacons raise the curtain on what gave promise of being a splendid season. The game, played in the Wake Forest gym on December 15, was a very one-sided affair and ended with the score being 28 to 26 in favor of the Old Gold and Black. Swing, Malloy, and Mulhern loomed them in from all angles, counting thirteen, twelve, and eleven points respectively.

Upon returning from the holidays, Wake Forest found their camp invaded by the basketekers from George Washington University, who presented a smooth passing attack that netted them a 33 to 25 victory. Mulhern and Swing tied for top scoring honors with seven points. Malloy was not far behind with five.

On January 6, the Demon Deacons journey to Durham to meet Duke, their first Big Five opponent. A little too much of Duke's tri-captains, Jim Thompson, Phil Weaver, and Herb Thompson, put Wake Forest on the low end of a 38-29 score, in spite of the fact that the Deacon quint outplayed their opponents in the second half. "Hack" Malloy led the scoring of his team with ten points. The guarding of Hatcher was excellent.

Three days later, found Wake Forest facing N. C. State in the Frank Thompson gymnasium. In one of the roughest games of the entire season, State won after two men on each team had been retired from the game via the personal foul route. Mulhern was high scorer with five points, and Brant and Leflin followed with three each. Hatcher played a nice floor game.

The Wake Forest basketball representatives dropped off at Charlotte on their way to South Carolina, and knocked the Charlotte Y club off their high perch to the tune of 30-21. Excellent team work featured the game. Malloy led the scoring with seven points.

On the following night, January 12, the Baptists engaged the Southern Conference champions of the previous year—the Gamecocks of the University of South Carolina on the latter's court. Much to the surprise of the South Carolina fans, their favorites were "held" to a 40-23 score. "Hack" Malloy played a large part in holding the score to this level. Playing against the Gamecocks' great Freddie Tompkins, Malloy was easily master of the situation, holding the U. S. C. forward to three seemingly impossible field shots. According to the South Carolina papers, he proved himself to be "as good a guard as ever set foot on the U. S. C. basketball court. In the second half, Mulhern opened up and made five field baskets all from difficult positions. Swing followed with six points.

Wake Forest's next Big Five contest was played against the University of North Carolina in the Tin

Can at Chapel Hill on January 16. The White Phantoms presented a swift passing attack that all but swept the Deacons off their feet. After being knocked out in the first few minutes of play, Nyril Weathers, the Tar Heel's all-state forward, recuperated nicely and pushed the ball through the ring to the tune of nineteen points. Jim McCachren got up on his toes and denied Joe Mulhern, the powerful Wake Forest forward, a single point. Jim's brother, Thye, had a little more trouble with Al Pero, sophomore forward. Al led his team's scoring with nine points.

On January 29, following a two week's layoff, Coach Greason's boys licked the Davidson Wildcats 34-25 on the latter's floor. Mulhern riddled the Cat's zone defense and caged twenty points. Malloy and Loftin showed the fans the intricate workings of a smooth-passing combination. Captain Swing outfooted his opponent, and took the tip most of the time.

The next night, Guilford was sent back to the county of that name by a 27-24 score. Malloy, playing his usual brilliant game, topped the winners with twelve points. Pero closely followed with ten.

Due to unforeseen difficulties in obtaining the Raleigh Auditorium, the second game with the "Red Terrors" of State College was played on the latter's court on February 2. In spite of early irruptions on the part of some of the fans, the dope bucket was not upset, and State won by the score of 33-19. The number four berth began to loom into view. Mulhern led the scoring for his team with six points, and Captain Swing five. The floor work of Hatcher was outstanding.

The second game with Carolina was played on February 6 on the Auditorium floor at Raleigh. A feature of this game was the guarding of Hatcher. This sophomore guard pulled the "circus tent" act, and covered Weathers so effectively that the Carolina forward did not register a single tally. In spite of the fact that the "White Phantoms" won 41-24, the Deacons had them in a "white sweat," a good bit of the time. In the first ten minutes of the second half, Wake Forest scored ten points while the Tar Heels were scoreless. Malloy racked up twelve marks.

Two days later, Wake Forest defeated Davidson for the second time, thus assuring themselves of fourth place in the Big Five hoop. This game, played in the Frank Thompson gym, was uninteresting and hoosily played. Neither team displayed any really brilliant basketball. Mulhern and Malloy tied for top scoring honors with eleven points each. Bob Forney, who played a fine floor game as well, rane up six markers to follow Mulhern and Malloy.

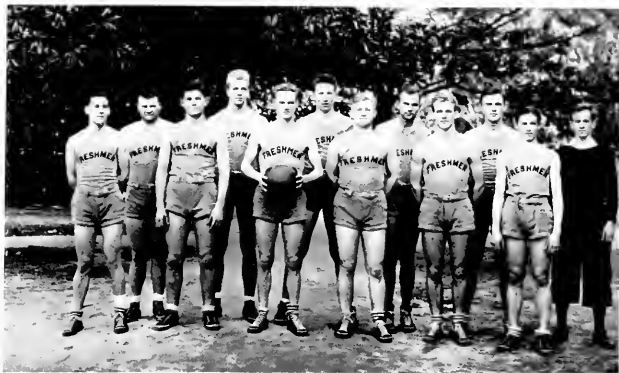

Another two-day interval followed before the Old Gold and Black played their last Big Five game against Duke in the Raleigh Auditorium. The Blue Devils soon found that they had a job on their hands, for Captain Swing outjumped and outplayed Connie Mack, Jr., in spite of a cession of several inches in height, and the score at half time was only 16-13 in favor of the Devils. However, the Duke boys strained away in the second half, and finished on the big end of a 37-21 score. Malloy counted nine points, Mulhern six.

For several reasons only one game was scheduled for the northern trip. On February 13 Wake Forest met George Washington University in Washington, D. C. In a very rough game, which was much more interesting than the 42-31 score indicates, the Demon Deacons wound up the playing season with a loss. Malloy scored ten points to put himself at the head of the column. Bob Forney, who could always be depended upon to show up well under fire, made two field goals and two foul shots to mark up six points. Jim Brunt made three field goals for six points also. In the language of a Washington reporter, Swing also swung in a couple of nice long shots.

In looking back over the season, the outstanding players are easily seen to be the four graduating men, with Clyde Hatcher, sophomore guard, also deserving mention. Had the club's percentage been higher, Malloy might easily have made the all-state selection. As a point-scorer, Mulhern also comes in for his share of praise.

Wake Forest lost a valuable man in Clay Loftin about the middle of the season. "Hack" Malloy, Joe Mulhern, "Stork" Swing, and Bob Forney were lost by graduation. However, with Patton, Brunt, Hatcher, Pero, and Clark as mainstays, and several good men coming up from the freshman squad, the team is expected to go places next year under the capable guidance of Coach Murray Greason.

1933 BASEBALL SEASON

THE Demon Deacon's 1933 baseball season can be termed a success in every sense of the word. It was the tendency on the part of most of the Deacon admirers to feel otherwise, because no one of them dreamed that the season would end without Wake Forest having annexed their second consecutive Big Five Championship. But fate had not so decreed, for if ever a jinxed ball club walked on the field, it was the 1933 edition of the Deacons.

After trimming three teams from Northern Schools in impressive style, the Deacons journeyed to Raleigh and "bucked like a million dollars" in defeating State in the annual Easter Monday Classic.

Before we could meet another Big Five opponent, three of our stars, Junie Barnes, star pitcher; Johnnie Hicks, catcher; and Monk Joyner, first base and cleanup man were injured in an automobile accident. Joyner was not able to participate in any of the remaining games, so with the loss of this shagging first-baseman, our infield was injured almost beyond repair. On top of this, Barnes never quite recovered top form and it can't be logically thought that Johnnie Hicks was benighted by the accident.

Struggling with a "Win or die" attitude the Deacons turned back the next five foes and then had one of those days that every team must have at some time against Carolina. This happened to be a day when it really hurt and Carolina defeated us for our first defeat of the season.

Wake Forest then defeated Duke and State in order, and then bowed to Carolina and Nate Andrews, while this great Carolina pitcher pulled the wonderful feat of pitching a no-hit, no-run game.

After returning home from a successful Northern trip, Wake Forest met Duke in a game on whose outcome hung the Deacons' title chances. With every break of the game going against us, we were defeated by the Blue Devils.

In the first four games of the season, before "Old Man Jim" got on their trail, the 1933 Deacons looked to be the greatest ball club ever to represent the school. If there has ever been a smoother infield than Coach John's was in 1933, it was before your author's time. To a person who likes and understands baseball, it was a joy to watch the Baptists play with their full strength on the field.

Captain Johnnie Hicks held down the catching job and did a swell job of it; Stroupe was substitute catcher. After Joyner was hurt, Leon Broaden was shifted from third base to first and looked mighty good on the initial sack. The veterans Bunting and Earp took good care of second base and shortstop respectively. It was a sight worth watching to see this pair handle the ball around the keystone sack. Clark and Gold, Sophomores, looked good on third base. In the outfield Mulhern, Johnson and White held down the regular jobs and proved indeed to be a fine trio of outer-gardeners. Slayton and Myers, Sophomores, understudying in the out field, looked good when called upon.

Barnes, Herring and Edwards made up the relief pitching staff with Barnes bearing the brunt of the hurling. This great left-hander turned in a mighty creditable performance despite his injured shoulder.

In spite of three losses out of eight starts in Big Five competition, the season was a credit to Wake Forest and to Coach John Caddell. A great ball club under a great coach, and our hats are off to 'em.

TRACK

THE Deacon cindermen broke four school records in the spring track activities although they were disappointed in failing to win a single one of the three meets of the season. Meets were held with Richmond College, the old rival Wildcats at Davidson, and the Guilford Quakers.

Fleming Fuller, captain for two years, star miler, 880 man and first year medical student, copped first honors with the most points for the season with Roger Johnson, pole vault and high jump man coming in for a close second.

School records broken were Fuller's fast mile and 880 in the Guilford meet, Johnson's pole vault, and a two mile turned in by the lanky Curtis Killough. Killough has been winner or runner-up in the annual fall cake-race for two years.

In the sprints the boys burning the track this year were "Skinny" Rothrock, Al Hayes, and F. P. Bristol. Fuller, Walker, and Canady took the middle distances with Williams, Killough, and Brandon taking the mile and the two mile. Whitey Russell took the hurdles; Hasty, Hartley, Taylor, Hicks, Webb, and Harrill heaved the weights and slung the javelin. The pole vaulting was left to Harold, Johnson, Cratchfield, and Russell, with Johnson, Webb, and Hartley clearing the bar in the high jump.

FROSH TRACK

Deaclet cindermen showed consistent training and quite a little prospect for another year, although the Freshmen won no meets or revealed any unusual prowess. Outstanding men in group of "Cinderlets" were Stroupe, Kinsey and Powell at the dash, with Weatherman, Sandrock, Sebren, and Ivey taking the middle distance. Drake, Walton and Norris clocked off the mile and the two mile; McLendon, Sate and Sullivan leaped the horizontal; Kinsey and Stroupe took the broad jump, and Daniels brought up the pole vault. Other men who were in the regular meets were Rollins, Walton, Peacock, Elliott, Perry, and Strickland. Brunt and Dawson showed up best in hurdles and the field events.

Coach Phil Utley was coach of track and field sports this year.

TENNIS

THE tennis enthusiasts gathered early one hot January afternoon and elected those gents that were to lead their squad for the season to come. The result of this momentous occasion was the selection of Bob Hutchins of the great city of Spencer to the office of Captain. As the man to do all the work, manager by name, they selected one Floyd Fletcher of our neighboring metropolis Raleigh.

Straightway these men, clothed with the gown of officialdom, wended their way to the sub-treasury located in the South Wing of the Library. There they found a sympathetic audience and sufficient funds were placed at their disposal to carry them through a rather extensive season.

Immediate work was begun and the following is the ever present memorial to their untiring labors.

In their efforts to procure such a schedule, the Captain and Manager were greatly aided by the splendid cooperation of that one and only Coach Jim Weaver.

Now as to the returns from those matches which have already been played prior to the writing of this article, the returns have been only mediocre. In their first effort, the racquetiers played nobly against that traveling crew from Boston College, winning 4 matches to 1. The next attempt was not so successful. Those national champions from Carolina toyed with our wielders and carried off a 9-0 score in their favor.

The Deacons then won handily from Guilford but lost heavily to that fighting team from Davidson, being saved only by the superb playing of Davis and Josey in their doubles match. The score, 8-1. It is rumored that the Deacons indulged in a match in Charlotte the Sunday of that week-end and were soundly trounced for their misbehavior.

Coming back to neighboring soil, the team took on State and easily won the match, losing only two matches. Then the team went to Chapel Hill and entered the State Intercollegiate Tournament. All were licked good except Hanson, who advanced to the second round and lost to that sporting player, Ricky Willis of Carolina.

Now this brings the results up to the date of the writing of this article. What will happen in the remaining matches must be left to that unreliable lady of fame, Fate. Whether the team will be composed of Dickinson, Hanson, Fletcher, Capt. Hutchins, Josey and Davis as before, is not known. There is strong contention for places on the team and whether some of the present members will be dethroned is a question that this writer will not attempt to answer.

Whether the team wins no more matches or strengthens with age and pulls down a few victories, it will always deserve that truly applicable title, "that traveling crew from Wake Forest."

GOLF

IN 1930-33 Wake Forest was represented by its first golf team. Teams had previously held informal matches; but, this year, the first organized golf team brought itself recognition.

Captain Hager, Zon Robinson, Jake Howell, Seniors, and Francis Paschal, a Sophomore, made up the golf team. The first match of the season saw the Deacons drawing a victory from Rollins College (Florida); and, from then until Commencement, Wake Forest gained victories from State and several neighboring County Clubs.

The Freshman Team also enjoyed a very successful season: winning one and losing one match to the State team; winning over Raleigh High School; and breaking even in two matches with Louisburg. Hatches, Potent, Josey, and Wall composed the Frosh Team.

THE WAKE FOREST OF TOMORROW

ON the four previous main division pages of this volume may be found the history of Wake Forest by Dr. G. W. Paschal. In it is the story of the growth and development of a truly fine school. Turn now to the future. Tomorrow brings a new day, a new era, and each of us wonders what it holds for the Wake Forest. If we could look into the future and discern with clarity the coming events, of this, I am sure: we would see a new Wake Forest, a greater institution devoted to the service of mankind. Why so? There is something about Wake Forest that has grown up in the last hundred years that no material drawbacks can lay hold of with their retroceeding hands; something that is very beautiful, very magnificent, and yet very subtle and sublime. It is the world of Wake Forest that we can feel with our hearts and imagination. Intangible, yes—unseen, yes—even unnamed. It is that force which might be tritely called the spirit of Wake Forest. It is that force which differentiates Wake Forest from other similar institutions. It is that force that moves each of us on the campus to speak to every one he meets; it is that force which in some unknown manner binds the sons of Wake Forest together in a common brotherhood.

Wake Forest stands now atop-toe on the misty mountain height and sees the sun make purple the glories of the east. It is the new day, the new era, and even when we have passed into the great beyond Wake Forest will live on ever sending out men instilled with the principles of the Creator, with a love for the true and beautiful, with a deep-seated regard for law and order. It is these men imbued with the spirit of Wake Forest that will, in the future, as they have done in the past, emblazon the name of Wake Forest at the top of that roll of honor of institutions rendering unstinted service to the commonwealth of North Carolina. It is these same men imbued with the same spirit of Wake Forest that will take over the helm of the affairs of the College and the State when the older drop by the wayside. It is these same men imbued with the same spirit of Wake Forest that will insure the future of the College and preserve the past, always striving, reaching, seeking to accomplish those things that will grant to Wake Forest an existence more glorious, more noble, more beautiful than that of the past. It is our faith in the spirit of Wake Forest which so urges the sons of Wake Forest ever onward and onward and onward, that assures us that Wake Forest must live on, "its purpose to fulfill, when weary eyes have closed, and tired hands grow still."

Barbara Jane Harris

ILLUSTRIOUS ALUMNI FEATURE A CENTURY OF PROGRESS IN EDUCATION . . .

In the realm of Education, time is measured not in years but in accomplishments. Age itself is no hall mark of merit.

The administration of Wake Forest College and its friends celebrate this year, not so much the passing of a hundred years since its founding, as they rejoice in its legacy of the exemplary lives of its great alumni.

We rejoice that the personnel of Wake Forest College today is such that the training of young men now enrolled will result in men equipped for lives that will carry on the treasured traditions of a great institution.

It is the valued privilege of this Company to cooperate with the administration in supplying their needs for fine printing.
